Introduction

Energy and environment have become major societal challenges of the third millennium, to which the JITHs try to respond both on fundamental and applied aspects. Since their launching in Monastir (Tunisia) in 1983, the JITH are organized every two years alternately in Algeria, Morocco, Tunisia and France. The 19th edition of the JITH will take place in Oran and, in addition to the general themes mentioned below, will deal with the particular theme "Wind Energy and Hybrid Systems".

Objectives

Among the objectives of this event:

- Promote cooperation between scientific teams on both sides of the Mediterranean;
- Provide an opportunity for young researchers to present their research work;
- Bring out new research themes or even new international collaborative projects;
- Contribute to the dissemination and exploitation of research work;
- Develop lasting relationships between researchers, industrial and decision-makers working in these fields.

Themes

Theme 1 : Recent developments in heat and mass transfer : Basic phenomena, methods and applications, components and thermal systems.

Theme 2 : Renewable energies: Solar, Wind, Biomass and Geothermal, Prototypes and Applications.

Theme 3 : Energy efficiency: Industry, Building, Agriculture and Transportation, Prototype and Applications

Theme 4 : Materials for energy : Characterization and Properties, Methods and Applications.
